Provider: The nurse tells me you are having some pain and discomfort.
Provider: Can you tell me what's going on?
Patient: Many things doctor. I have a lot of gas after eating, I don't feel like eating too much and I have trouble going to the bathroom.
Patient: I also feel dizzy and just weak all over.
Provider: Have you noticed any blood in your stool?
Patient: I think so and I am feeling very weak today.
Patient: My stomach is making a lot of noise and I don't know if it's something I ate last night.
Provider: Let's start by checking your bowel movements and your urine.
Provider: We may need to also do a blood test to check your hemoglobin and white blood count levels.
Provider: I will also schedule you for a procedure to check the inside of your rectum and colon.
Patient: I really just need a new prescription for a blue pill that I was taking once a day.
Patient: It helped me a lot a few months ago when I had the same pain.
Patient: Can I just get a prescription for more pills?

Provider: If there's blood in your stool, it is a sign of a serious condition.
Provider: I recommend that we schedule you for a Barium Enema which is a type of x-ray that can show us if you have any problems in your colon.
Provider: You have to do certain things to prepare for this test, so we won't be able to do it all today.
Patient: What do I have to do for this test?
Patient: Is this something that will hurt?
Provider: One day before the procedure, you have to eat a clear liquid diet all day.
Provider: That means apple juice, black coffee or tea and water.
Provider: You need to drink at least five eight-ounce glasses of water.
Provider: Then we will give you a medicine to take the evening before the procedure.
Provider: The medicine will help clean the colon so we can see it better.
Patient: I feel better now, and I think my appetite is coming back doctor. I may not need the procedure after all! Thank you.
